

Character Design

When I listened to the 'Down under', the lyric: 'On a hippie trail, head full of zombie', this was my start point because I could image what it looked like as an animation, and I love zombie movie/ comic/ animation!

I searched lots of hippie's photo, and the first sketch was different compared to the final outcome, from my perspective, a character's clothes can show its personality, but it still needs to be simple or it would be difficult to draw every scene, therefore, I decided to let my character wear one piece dress.

To be honest, this is the first time for me to use photoshop, I feel more comfortable to use traditional way to draw (paper and pencil), however, I think I have more interest in digital painting, and also lots of points that I can improve myself. In this painting, I tried to use the brush to create a children's book's style, I am still finding my style.
